문법

1. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 어법상 틀린 것은?[1)]

A key assumption in consumer societies ① has been the idea ② that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people ③ have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being ④ have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is ⑤ emerged: More money does ⑥ bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. However, as a global average, when per capita income ⑦ reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance ⑧ add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations ⑨ has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

2. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 어법상 틀린 것은?[2)]

We ① are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we ② are for urban life. As a result, "Situations ③ are constantly evaluated as good or bad, ④ requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses ⑤ is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains ⑥ are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one ⑦ has been seen. That is ⑧ why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats ⑨ are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as ⑩ being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us ⑪ to overestimate our chances of winning the lottery.

3. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 어법상 틀린 것은?[3)]

It is not only through our actions ① that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our loving dedication to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some ② hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life ③ meaningful? I prefer to confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and ④ listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony ⑤ resound in your ears, and you are so ⑥ moved by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be possible for someone ⑦ to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would agree with me if I ⑧ declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it ⑨ to live for this moment alone!"

4. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 어법상 틀린 것은?[4)]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher ① is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then ② design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization ③ is then argued for, and an advance in understanding ④ has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague ⑤ whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question ⑥ spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of ⑦ existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — ⑧ concerned with the rational part, and fail ⑨ to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would ⑩ be done, no new insights would ⑪ be gained, and no new theories would ⑫ be formulated.

어휘 추론

5. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?[5)]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to ① subsistence, so an increase in income brought ② genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced ③ more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to ④ unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of ⑤ unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring ⑥ more happiness when we are living on a very low income. However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively ⑦ much to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance ⑧ add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to a(n) ⑨ increase in perceived well-being.

6. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?[6)]

We are wired ① more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are ② constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally ③ greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to ④ bad news. Our brains are set up to ⑤ detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that ⑥ acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act ⑦ before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above ⑧ opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "⑨ overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us ⑩ underestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

7. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?[7)]

It is not only through our ① actions that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of ② existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our ③ loving dedication to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life ④ meaningful? I prefer to ⑤ confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so ⑥ moved by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be ⑦ possible for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would ⑧ disagree with me if I declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone!"

8. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?[8)]

The process of research is often not entirely ① rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to ② develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis ③ withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this ④ innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of ⑤ aspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and ⑥ rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the ⑦ rational part, and ⑧ fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the ⑨ creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

빈칸 추론

9. 다음 글의 빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[9]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our ____(A)____ is naturally greater than our ____(B)____ (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

	(A)	(B)
①	attraction to gain	privileged opportunities
②	attraction to gain	aversion to losses
③	attraction to gain	attraction to gain
④	aversion to losses	aversion to losses
⑤	aversion to losses	attraction to gain

10. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[10]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question _____ on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

① spawn brilliant research projects
② learn from earlier mistakes
③ develop a wealth of experience
④ embrace critical perspectives
⑤ investigate familiar things again

11. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[11]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "_____." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

① identity assumes importance
② money buys happiness
③ society loses stability
④ society supports diversity
⑤ nationality bears significance

12. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[12]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we _____, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

① rationalize our decisions
② learn and absorb information
③ find solutions to problems
④ overweight unlikely events
⑤ adjust to new circumstances

13. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[13]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and _____, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

① fail to deal with the creative part
② concentrate on our priorities
③ evolve creative genius
④ let down its sensory guard
⑤ have more chances to get to know ourselves

14. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[14]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are _____. However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

① holding back words of praise
② criticizing employees in public
③ delaying giving any feedback at all
④ living on a very low income
⑤ expressing their frustrations violently

15. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[15]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "_____," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

① Minority cooperates with majority
② We can mobilize our old areas in novel ways
③ Threats are privileged above opportunities
④ Cultural tools stabilize our brain functionality
⑤ We cannot adapt ourselves to natural challenges

16. 다음 글의 빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[16]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of ____(B)____ (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and ____(A)____ (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

	(A)	(B)
①	inspiration	irrational behavior
②	inspiration	rational thinking
③	conspiration	irrational behavior
④	aspiration	rational thinking
⑤	aspiration	irrational behavior

17. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[17]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations _____.

① has resisted the temptation to speak ill of others
② has concealed both our aspirations and expectations
③ has considered either our own or others' ideas fairly
④ has gotten along well with others who have similar views
⑤ has not led to an increase in perceived well-being

18. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[18]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to _____. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

① change the aquatic food chains
② give priority to bad news
③ attract others and build colonies
④ wait for the reef to give rewards
⑤ conform to changes in ecosystems

19. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[19]

It is not only through our actions that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can _____: in our loving dedication to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life meaningful? I prefer to confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so moved by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be possible for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would agree with me if I declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone!"

① admit that abstract concepts are also a reflection of culture
② wonder whether abstracting is the right thing to do
③ run the risk of leaving out some meaningful factors
④ fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings
⑤ suggest that the essence of mathematics is problem solving

20. 다음 글의 빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[20]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the ____(A)____ part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the ____(B)____ part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

	(A)	(B)
①	creative	illegal
②	creative	irrational
③	rational	inventive
④	rational	irrational
⑤	rational	inventive

21. 다음 글의 빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[21)]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. ____(A)____, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. ____(B)____, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

	(A)	(B)
①	Moreover	Furthermore
②	Moreover	However
③	Moreover	For example
④	However	However
⑤	However	For example

22. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[22)]

We _____ on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

① are wired more for the struggle for survival
② harmonize with the background images
③ break the surface of conscious attention
④ are activated to revive our past memories
⑤ make it hard for us to notice their danger

23. 다음 글의 빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[23)]

It is not only through our ____(A)____ that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our ____(B)____ to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life meaningful? I prefer to confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so moved by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be possible for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would agree with me if I declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone!"

	(A)	(B)
①	actions	status que
②	actions	vicious cycle
③	actions	loving dedication
④	thoughts	vicious cycle
⑤	thoughts	loving dedication

24. 다음 글의 빈칸에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[24)]

The process of research is often not entirely _____. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

① illegal
② rational
③ repetitive
④ temporary
⑤ biased

25. 다음 글의 빈칸 (A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[25)]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. ____(A)____, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. ____(A)____, it leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

	(A)	(B)
①	In contrast	That is
②	In contrast	Nevertheless
③	In contrast	Furthermore
④	As a result	Nevertheless
⑤	As a result	Furthermore

주어진 문장 넣기

26. 글의 흐름으로 보아, 주어진 문장이 들어가기에 가장 적절한 것은?[26)]

That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting.

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. ① As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." ② In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). ③ We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. ④ Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. ⑤ "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

27. 글의 흐름으로 보아, 주어진 문장이 들어가기에 가장 적절한 것은?[27)]

However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more.

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." ① Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. ② However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. ③ Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. ④ Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being. ⑤

28. 글의 흐름으로 보아, 주어진 문장이 들어가기에 가장 적절한 것은?[28)]

Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory).

The process of research is often not entirely rational. ① In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. ② If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. ③ But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? ④ I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. ⑤ Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

29. 글의 흐름으로 보아, 주어진 문장이 들어가기에 가장 적절한 것은?[29)]

This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack.

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. ① As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." ② In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. ③ Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. ④ That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. ⑤ It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

30. 글의 흐름으로 보아, 주어진 문장이 들어가기에 가장 적절한 것은?30)

However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance.

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." ① Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. ② Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. ③ However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. ④ Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being. ⑤

31. 글의 흐름으로 보아, 주어진 문장이 들어가기에 가장 적절한 것은?31)

In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two).

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. ① As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." ② We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. ③ Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. ④ That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. ⑤ This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

32. 글의 흐름으로 보아, 주어진 문장이 들어가기에 가장 적절한 것은?32)

But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place?

The process of research is often not entirely rational. ① In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. ② If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. ③ I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. ④ Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). ⑤ Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

글의 흐름

33. 다음 글에서 전체 흐름과 관계없는 문장은?[33]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." ① Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. ② However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. ③ Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. ④ The dating question evidently caused that aspect of life to become relevant and its importance to be exaggerated when the respondents encountered the more general question about their happiness. ⑤ However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

34. 다음 글에서 전체 흐름과 관계없는 문장은?[34]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." ① In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). ② We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. ③ Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. ④ One is the brain-drain myth, according to which the countries of origin are being robbed of talent. ⑤ That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

35. 다음 글에서 전체 흐름과 관계없는 문장은?[35]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. ① If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. ② But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? ③ I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. ④ Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). ⑤ It follows from this theory that because war stems from a natural urge, it is likely inevitable. Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

글의 순서

36. 주어진 글 다음에 이어질 글의 순서로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[36]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness."

(A) However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income.

(B) However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

(C) Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness.

① (A)-(C)-(B) ② (B)-(A)-(C)
③ (B)-(C)-(A) ④ (C)-(A)-(B)
⑤ (C)-(B)-(A)

37. 주어진 글 다음에 이어질 글의 순서로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[37]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life.

(A) That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

(B) As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two).

(C) We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen.

① (A)-(C)-(B) ② (B)-(A)-(C)
③ (B)-(C)-(A) ④ (C)-(A)-(B)
⑤ (C)-(B)-(A)

38. 주어진 글 다음에 이어질 글의 순서로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[38)]

It is not only through our actions that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our loving dedication to the beautiful, the great, the good.

(A) I believe you would agree with me if I declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone!"

(B) I prefer to confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so moved by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be possible for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning.

(C) Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life meaningful?

① (A)-(C)-(B) ② (B)-(A)-(C)
③ (B)-(C)-(A) ④ (C)-(A)-(B)
⑤ (C)-(B)-(A)

39. 주어진 글 다음에 이어질 글의 순서로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[39)]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it.

(A) Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

(B) If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions.

(C) Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory).

① (A)-(C)-(B) ② (B)-(A)-(C)
③ (B)-(C)-(A) ④ (C)-(A)-(B)
⑤ (C)-(B)-(A)

어법 선택

40. 다음 글의 네모 안에서 문법상 맞는 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[서술형]40)

A key assumption in consumer societies [has / have] been the idea [that / which] "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people [have lived / has lived] close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being [has / have] moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is [emerging / emerged]: More money does [bring / to bring] more happiness when we are living on a very low income. However, as a global average, when per capita income [reaches / reaches to] the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while [another / other] factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance [add / add] much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations [has / have] not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

41. 다음 글의 네모 안에서 문법상 맞는 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[서술형]41)

We [wire / are wired] more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we [are / do] for urban life. As a result, "Situations [constantly evaluate / are constantly evaluated] as good or bad, [requiring / required] escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means [that / what] our aversion to losses [is / are] naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains [set / are set] up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain [that / what] acknowledges one [has seen / has been seen]. That is [why / because] we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats [privilege / are privileged] above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means [that / what] we "overweight" unlikely events, such as [catching / being caught] in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us [to overestimate / overestimating] our chances of winning the lottery.

42. 다음 글의 네모 안에서 문법상 맞는 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[서술형]42)

It is not only through our actions [that / what] we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our loving dedication to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some [hackneying / hackneyed] phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life [meaningful / meaningfully]? I prefer to confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and [listen / listening] to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony [resound / resounds] in your ears, and you are so [moving / moved] by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be possible for someone [to ask / asking] you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would agree with me if I [declared / had declared] [that / what] in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would [be / have been] worth it [to have lived / to live] for this moment alone!"

43. 다음 글의 네모 안에서 문법상 맞는 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[서술형]43)

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher [supposes / is supposed] [to develop / developing] a hypothesis, then [design / designing] a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization [then argues / is then argued] for, and an advance in understanding [has made / has been made]. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague [whom / whose] favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question [spawn / to spawn] brilliant research projects on quite [a few / a little] occasions. Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and [surprising / surprised], finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of [existing / existed] theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — [concerned / are concerned] with the rational part, and fail [to deal / dealing] with the creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would [do / be done], no new insights would [gain / be gained], and no new theories would [formulate / be formulated].

서술형

다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하시오.

A key assumption in consumer societies (A)have been the idea (B)that "(C)_____ buys (D)_____." Historically, there is a good reason for (E)this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people (F)have lived close to (G)_____, so an increase in income brought (H)_____ in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and (I)this has produced (J)[more / less] happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond (K)_____ to (L)_____. Developed nations have had several generations of (M)_____, and a clear understanding is (N)emerge: More money (O)does bring (P)[more / less] happiness when we are living on a very (Q)[high / low] income. However, as a global average, when per capita income (R)reach the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively (S)[much / little] to our happiness, (T)while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and (U)_____ (V)add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations (W)have not led to a(n) (X)_____ in (Y)perceive well-being.

[보기][중복 사용 가능][필요시 변형]

genuine increases / happiness / increase / money / subsistence / social tolerance / unprecedented abundance / unparalleled material prosperity

44. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (A)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][44]

45. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (B)부분과 같은 것을 고르시오.[45]

① A little dog recently proved that the belief was true.
② I'm often surprised at the confidence that some people have that A.I.
③ I'm sorry that I abused the confidence of you.
④ That is the rumor that made the news cycle.
⑤ I need the evidence that proves she's dirty.

46. 위 글의 빈칸 (C)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][46]

47. 위 글의 빈칸 (D)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][47]

48. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (E)부분이 의미하는 바를 본문에서 찾아 우리말로 적으시오.[서술형][48]

49. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (F)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][49]

50. 위 글의 빈칸 (G)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][50]

51. 위 글의 빈칸 (H)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][51]

52. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (I)부분이 의미하는 바를 본문에서 찾아 우리말로 적으시오.[서술형][52]

53. 위 글의 괄호 (J)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][53]

54. 위 글의 빈칸 (K)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][54]

55. 위 글의 빈칸 (L)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][55]

56. 위 글의 빈칸 (M)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][56]

57. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (N)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][57]

58. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (O)부분과 문법상 같은 것을 고르시오.[58]

① I did not expect it to be so difficult.
② I did what little I could.
③ He did exactly the same to me.
④ The sea has its current, as do the river and the lake.
⑤ First, I do play the game harder for my dream.

59. 위 글의 괄호 (P)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][59]

60. 위 글의 괄호 (Q)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][60]

61. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (R)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][61]

62. 위 글의 괄호 (S)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][62]

63. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (T)부분과 같은 의미를 고르시오.[63]

① We must have been burgled while we were asleep.
② While I was waiting at the bus stop, three buses went by in the opposite direction.
③ While I am willing to help, I do not have much time available.
④ Kicking a person while he's down is an action of cowardice.
⑤ While Tom's very good at science, his brother is absolutely hopeless.

64. 위 글의 빈칸 (U)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][64]

65. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (V)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][65]

66. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (W)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][66]

67. 위 글의 빈칸 (X)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][67]

68. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (Y)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][68]

69. 아래 영영풀이에 해당하는 단어를 위 글에서 찾아 적으시오.[서술형][69]

the state of being successful usually by making a lot of money

70. 위 글을 요약하고자 한다. 다음 빈칸(A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[70]

Current material (A)_____ does not (B)_____ the happiness we feel.

	(A)	(B)
①	affluence	neutralize
②	affluence	increase
③	affluence	decrease
④	shortage	increase
⑤	distracted	decrease

71. 위 글의 주제를 적으시오.[서술형][71]

the c_____ between i_____ growth and h_____

다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하시오.

We (A)wire (B)[more / less] for the struggle for survival on the (C)_____ than we (D)are for (E)_____. As a result, "Situations are (F)[hardly / constantly] (G)evaluate as good or bad, (H)require escape or (I)permit approach." In everyday life, this means that our (J)_____ (K)be naturally (L)[greater / smaller] than our (M)_____ (by a factor of two). We have a(n) (N)_____ to give priority to (O)[good / bad] news. Our brains (P)set up to (Q)[detect / defect] a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that (R)[acknowledges / ignores] one (S)see[완료시제]. That is (T)because we can act (U)[after / before] we even "know" we are acting. "(V)_____ (W)privilege above (X)_____," Kahneman says. (Y)This natural tendency means that we "(Z)[overweight / undervalue]" unlikely events, such as (AB)catch in a terrorist attack. (AC)그것은 또한 우리가 우리 자신이 복권에 당첨될 가능성을 과대평가하게 만든다.

[보기][중복 사용 가능][필요시 변형]

aversion to losses / attraction to gain / inbuilt mechanism / opportunities / savannah / threats / urban life

72. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (A)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][72]

73. 위 글의 괄호 (B)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][73]

74. 위 글의 빈칸 (C)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][74]

75. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (D)부분이 의미하는 바를 본문에서 찾아 필요시 변형하여 적으시오.[서술형][75]

76. 위 글의 빈칸 (E)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][76]

77. 위 글의 괄호 (F)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][77]

78. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (G)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][78]

79. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (H)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][79]

80. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (I)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][80]

81. 위 글의 빈칸 (J)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][81]

82. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (K)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][82]

83. 위 글의 괄호 (L)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][83]

84. 위 글의 빈칸 (M)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][84]

85. 위 글의 빈칸 (N)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][85]

86. 위 글의 괄호 (O)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][86]

87. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (P)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][87]

88. 위 글의 괄호 (Q)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][88]

89. 위 글의 괄호 (R)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][89]

90. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (S)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][90]

91. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (T)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][91]

92. 위 글의 괄호 (U)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][92]

93. 위 글의 빈칸 (V)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][93]

94. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (W)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][94]

95. 위 글의 빈칸 (X)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형][95]

96. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (Y)부분이 의미하는 바를 본문에서 찾아 우리말로 적으시오.[서술형][96]

97. 위 글의 괄호 (Z)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][97]

98. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (AB)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형][옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][98]

99. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (AC)부분의 우리말을 필요시 변형하여 영어로 적으시오.[서술형][99][]단어를 추가하시오]

It also / to / lead / win / overestimate / our chances / the lottery / us

100. 아래 영영풀이에 해당하는 단어를 위 글에서 찾아 적으시오.[서술형][100]

a strong feeling of not liking something

101. 위 글을 요약하고자 한다. 다음 빈칸(A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[101]

Humans (A)_____ threats and unexpected situations more than opportunities because of their (B)_____.

	(A)	(B)
①	undervalue	happy situations
②	undervalue	survival instincts
③	undervalue	obsolete information
④	value	survival instincts
⑤	value	obsolete information

102. 위 글의 주제를 적으시오.[서술형][102]

human s_____ mechanisms to p_____ t_____ and u_____ situations

다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하시오.

It is not only through our (A)_____ that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — (B)우리는 능동적인 행위자로서 뿐만 아니라 애정 어린 인간으로서 존재의 요구를 충족시킬 수 있다: in our (C)_____ to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some (D)_____ how and why experiencing beauty can make life (E)_____? I prefer to (F)_____ myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so (G)_____ by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that (H)it would be (I)_____ for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would (J)_____ with me if I declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "(K)오직 이 순간만을 위해 살아왔더라도 그럴 만한 가치가 있었을 거야!"

[보기][중복 사용 가능][필요시 변형]

actions / agree / confine / hackneyed phrase / loving dedication / meaningful / move / possible

103. 위 글의 빈칸 (A)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형]103)

104. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (B)부분의 우리말을 필요시 변형하여 영어로 적으시오.[서술형]104)

we can fulfill / existence / the demands / not only / but also / active agents / of / as / as / loving human beings

105. 위 글의 빈칸 (C)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형]105)

106. 위 글의 빈칸 (D)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형]106)

107. 위 글의 빈칸 (E)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형]107)

108. 위 글의 빈칸 (F)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형]108)

109. 위 글의 빈칸 (G)부분에 들어갈 말을 위에 보기에서 골라 적으시오.[서술형]109)

110. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (H)부분이 의미하는 바를 본문에서 찾아 우리말로 적으시오.[서술형]110)

111. 위 글의 괄호 (I)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형]111)

112. 위 글의 괄호 (J)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형]112)

113. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (K)부분의 우리말을 필요시 변형하여 영어로 적으시오.[서술형]113)

It / it / would / alone / worth / to / be / live / for / this moment

114. 아래 영영풀이에 해당하는 단어를 위 글에서 찾아 적으시오.[서술형]114)

not interesting, funny, etc., because of being used too often; not fresh or original

115. 위 글을 요약하고자 한다. 다음 빈칸(A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?115)

Through our (A)_____ to the beautiful, we can meet the needs of (B)_____ as loving human beings.

	(A)	(B)
①	selfish greed	eruption
②	selfish greed	extinction
③	selfish greed	existence
④	loving commitment	extinction
⑤	loving commitment	existence

116. 위 글의 주제를 적으시오.[서술형]116)

the m_____ of life in e_____ b_____

다음 글을 읽고 물음에 답하시오.

The process of research is often not entirely (A)[rational / creative]. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher (B)suppose to (C)[develop / remove] a hypothesis, then (D)design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis (E)[withstands / misunderstands] this test a generalization (F)then argue for, and an advance in understanding (G)make[완료시제]. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague (H)who favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this (I)[innocent / misleading] question (J)spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of (K)[inspiration / conspiration] (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and (L)surprise, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and (M)[rational thinking / irrational behavior] (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of (N)exist theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — (O)concern with the (P)[rational / creative] part, and (Q)[succeed / fail] to deal with the (R)[rational / creative] part, yet (S)without the (T)[rational / creative] part no real research would (U)do, no new insights would (V)gain, and no new theories would (W)formulate.

117. 위 글의 괄호 (A)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][117]

118. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (B)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][118]

119. 위 글의 괄호 (C)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][119]

120. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (D)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][120]

121. 위 글의 괄호 (E)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][121]

122. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (F)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][122]

123. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (G)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][123]

124. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (H)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][124]

125. 위 글의 괄호 (I)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][125]

126. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (J)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][126]

127. 위 글의 괄호 (K)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][127]

128. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (L)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][128]

129. 위 글의 괄호 (M)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][129]

130. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (N)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][130]

131. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (O)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][131]

132. 위 글의 괄호 (P)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][132]

133. 위 글의 괄호 (Q)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][133]

134. 위 글의 괄호 (R)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][134]

135. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (S)부분과 문법상 같은 표현 3가지를 적으시오.[서술형][135]

136. 위 글의 괄호 (T)부분 안에서 문맥에 맞는 낱말로 가장 적절한 것을 고르시오.[서술형][136]

137. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (U)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][137]

138. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (V)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][138]

139. 위 글의 밑줄 친 (W)부분을 문법상 옳은 표현으로 고쳐 적으시오.[서술형Ⅰ옳은 표현이면 그대로 적으시오.][139]

140. 아래 영영풀이에 해당하는 단어를 위 글에서 찾아 적으시오.[서술형][140]

to cause (something) to develop or begin, to produce or create (something)

141. 위 글을 요약하고자 한다. 다음 빈칸(A), (B)에 들어갈 말로 가장 적절한 것은?[141]

Since research is a (A)_____ of inspiration and rational thinking, real research cannot be done without the (A)_____.

	(A)	(B)
①	mixture	creative part
②	mixture	rational part
③	mixture	irrational part
④	separation	creative part
⑤	separation	rational part

142. 위 글의 제목을 적으시오.[서술형][142]

The Essence of R_____ - A M_____ of I_____ and R_____ T_____

빈칸 영작

143. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말을 주어진 〈조건〉에 맞게 영어로 쓰시오.143)

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to subsistence, so an increase in income brought genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: _____. However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

[조건]

아래 단어를 이용하고 필요시 추가할 수 있음 / more를 2번 사용할 것 / 동사를 강조할 것

more money / bring / happiness / we are living / on a very low income

144. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말을 주어진 〈조건〉에 맞게 영어로 쓰시오.144)

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that _____ (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

[조건]

아래 단어를 이용하고 필요시 추가할 수 있음

great / our attraction / our aversion / to / than / to / naturally / gain / losses

145. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말을 주어진 〈조건〉에 맞게 영어로 쓰시오.145)

_____ — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our loving dedication to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life meaningful? I prefer to confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so moved by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be possible for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would agree with me if I declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone!"

[조건]

아래 단어를 이용하고 필요시 추가할 수 있음 / 부사구를 강조 하는 문장으로 적을 것

through / life / meaning / we / can / give / our actions / not only

146. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말을 주어진 〈조건〉에 맞게 영어로 쓰시오.[146)]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the creative part, yet _____ no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

[조건]

아래 단어를 이용하고 필요시 추가할 수 있음

without / part

147. 다음 빈칸에 들어갈 말을 주어진 〈조건〉에 맞게 영어로 쓰시오.[147)]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "_____," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

[조건]

아래 단어를 이용하고 필요시 추가할 수 있음

privilege / opportunities / threats

어휘 변형

148. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?148)

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to ① subsistence, so an increase in income brought ② authentic increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced ③ more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to ④ unparalleled abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of ⑤ unrivaled material prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring ⑥ more happiness when we are living on a very low income. However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively ⑦ little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social tolerance ⑧ remove much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to a(n) ⑨ increase in perceived well-being.

149. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?149)

We are wired ① more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are ② constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our aversion to losses is naturally ③ greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give priority to ④ good news. Our brains are set up to ⑤ spot a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that ⑥ acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act ⑦ before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are privileged above ⑧ opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "⑨ outweigh" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us ⑩ overrating our chances of winning the lottery.

150. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?150)

It is not only through our ① behaviors that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of ② existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our ③ loving devotion to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life ④ meaningful? I prefer to ⑤ restrain myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so ⑥ disappointed by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be ⑦ possible for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would ⑧ agree with me if I declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone!"

151. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중, 문맥상 낱말의 쓰임이 적절하지 않은 것은?151)

The process of research is often not entirely ① rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to ② develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis ③ tolerates this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this ④ innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of ⑤ inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and ⑥ rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the ⑦ creative part, and ⑧ fail to deal with the creative part, yet without the inventive part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be formulated.

152. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중 영영풀이가 맞지 않는 것은?[152)]

A key assumption in consumer societies has been the idea that "money buys happiness." Historically, there is a good reason for this assumption — until the last few generations, a majority of people have lived close to ① subsistence, so an increase in income brought ② genuine increases in material well-being (e.g., food, shelter, health care) and this has produced more happiness. However, in a number of developed nations, levels of material well-being have moved beyond subsistence to ③ unprecedented abundance. Developed nations have had several generations of unparalleled material ④ prosperity, and a clear understanding is emerging: More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income. However, as a global average, when per capita income reaches the range of $13,000 per year, additional income adds relatively little to our happiness, while other factors such as personal freedom, meaningful work, and social ⑤ tolerance add much more. Often, a doubling or tripling of income in developed nations has not led to an increase in perceived well-being.

① the amount of food, money, etc., that is needed to stay alive
② actual, real, or true; not false or fake
③ not done or experienced before
④ something that is owned by a person, business, etc
⑤ willingness to accept feelings, habits, or beliefs that are different from your own

153. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중 의미가 같은 어휘로 바르게 연결되지 않은 것은?[153)]

We are wired more for the struggle for survival on the savannah than we are for urban life. As a result, "Situations are constantly evaluated as good or bad, requiring escape or permitting approach." In everyday life, this means that our ① aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain (by a factor of two). We have an inbuilt mechanism to give ② priority to bad news. Our brains are set up to ③ detect a predator in a fraction of a second, much quicker than the part of the brain that acknowledges one has been seen. That is why we can act before we even "know" we are acting. "Threats are ④ privileged above opportunities," Kahneman says. This natural tendency means that we "⑤ overweight" unlikely events, such as being caught in a terrorist attack. It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery.

① antipathy
② preference
③ spot
④ obviated
⑤ outweigh

154. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중 영영풀이가 맞지 않는 것은?[154)]

It is not only through our actions that we can give life meaning — insofar as we can answer life's specific questions responsibly — we can fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings: in our loving ① dedication to the beautiful, the great, the good. Should I perhaps try to explain for you with some ② hackneyed phrase how and why experiencing beauty can make life meaningful? I prefer to ③ confine myself to the following thought experiment: imagine that you are sitting in a concert hall and listening to your favorite symphony, and your favorite bars of the symphony resound in your ears, and you are so ④ moved by the music that it sends shivers down your spine; and now imagine that it would be possible for someone to ask you in this moment whether your life has meaning. I believe you would agree with me if I ⑤ declared that in this case you would only be able to give one answer, and it would go something like: "It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone!"

① a feeling of very strong support for or loyalty to someone or something; the quality or state of being dedicated to a person, group, cause, etc.
② not interesting, funny, etc., because of being used too often; not fresh or original
③ to keep (someone or something) within limits; to prevent (someone or something) from going beyond a particular limit, area, etc.
④ to be made unhappy by not being as good as expected or by not doing something that was hoped for or expected
⑤ to say or state (something) in an official or public way

155. 다음 글의 밑줄 친 부분 중 의미가 같은 어휘로 바르게 연결되지 않은 것은?[155)]

The process of research is often not entirely rational. In the classical application of the 'scientific method', the researcher is supposed to develop a hypothesis, then design a crucial experiment to test it. If the hypothesis ① withstands this test a generalization is then argued for, and an advance in understanding has been made. But where did the hypothesis come from in the first place? I have a colleague whose favourite question is 'Why is this so?', and I've seen this ② innocent question spawn brilliant research projects on quite a few occasions. Research is a mixture of ③ inspiration (hypothesis generation, musing over the odd and surprising, finding lines of attack on difficult problems) and rational thinking (design and execution of crucial experiments, analysis of results in terms of existing theory). Most of the books on research methods and design of experiments — there are hundreds of them — are concerned with the rational part, and fail to deal with the ④ creative part, yet without the creative part no real research would be done, no new insights would be gained, and no new theories would be ⑤ formulated.

① tolerate
② naive
③ originality
④ inventive
⑤ wiped out

정답

1) ⑤ emerging
2) ⑪ overestimating
3) ⑨ to have lived
4) ⑧ are concerned
5) ⑦ little
6) ⑩ overestimating
7) ⑧ agree
8) ⑤ inspiration
9) ⑤
10) ①
11) ②
12) ④
13) ①
14) ④
15) ③
16) ②
17) ⑤
18) ②
19) ④
20) ③
21) ④
22) ①
23) ③
24) ②
25) ⑤
26) ⑤
27) ④
28) ⑤
29) ⑤
30) ②
31) ②
32) ③
33) ④
34) ④
35) ⑤
36) ④
37) ③
38) ⑤
39) ③
40) [has] [that] [have lived] [have] [bring] [reaches] [other] [add] [has]
41) [are wired] [are] [are constantly evaluated] [requiring] [that] [is] [are set] [that] [has been seen] [why] [are privileged] [that] [being caught] [overestimating]
42) [that] [hackneyed] [meaningful] [listening] [resound] [moved] [to ask] [declared] [that] [have been] [to have lived]
43) [is supposed] [to develop] [design] [is then argued] [has been made] [whose] [spawn] [a few] [surprising] [existing] [are concerned] [to deal] [be done] [be gained] [be formulated]
44) has
45) ②
46) money
47) happiness
48) 돈으로 행복을 얻는다
49) have
50) subsistence
51) genuine increases
52) 소득 증가는 물질적 복지의 진정한 향상을 가져온 것
53) more
54) subsistence
55) unprecedented abundance
56) unparalleled material prosperity
57) emerging
58) ⑤
59) more
60) low
61) reaches
62) little
63) ⑤
64) social tolerance
65) add
66) has
67) increase
68) perceived
69) prosperity
70) ②
71) the correlation between income growth and happiness
72) are wired
73) more
74) savannah
75) are wired for the struggle for survival
76) urban life
77) constantly
78) evaluated
79) requiring
80) permitting
81) aversion to losses
82) is
83) greater
84) attraction to gain
85) inbuilt mechanism
86) bad
87) are set
88) detect
89) acknowledges
90) has been seen
91) why
92) before
93) Threats
94) are privileged
95) opportunities
96) 우리는 나쁜 소식에 우선순위를 부여하는 내재 된 기

제를 가지고 있는 것
97) overweight
98) being caught
99) It also leads to us overestimating our chances of winning the lottery
100) aversion
101) ④
102) human survival mechanisms to prioritize threats and unexpected situations
103) actions
104) we can fulfill the demands of existence not only as active agents but also as loving human beings
105) loving dedication
106) hackneyed phrase
107) meaningful
108) confine
109) moved
110) 누군가가 여러분에게 이 순간 여러분의 삶이 의미가 있는지를 묻는 것
111) possible
112) agree
113) It would have been worth it to have lived for this moment alone
114) hackneyed
115) ⑤
116) the meaning of life in experiencing beauty
117) rational
118) is supposed
119) develop
120) design
121) withstands
122) is then argued
123) has been made
124) whose
125) innocent
126) spawn
127) inspiration
128) surprising
129) rational thinking
130) existing
131) are concerned
132) rational
133) fail
134) creative
135) but for, if it were not for, were it not for
136) creative
137) be done
138) be gained
139) be formulated
140) spawn
141) ①
142) The Essence of Research - A Mix of Inspiration and Rational Thinking
143) More money does bring more happiness when we are living on a very low income
144) our aversion to losses is naturally greater than our attraction to gain
145) It is not only through our actions that we can give life meaning
146) without the creative part
147) Threats are privileged above opportunities
148) ⑧ add
149) ④ bad
150) ⑥ moved
151) ⑦ rational
152) ④
153) ④
154) ④
155) ⑤