1	Competition among tourist destinations might contribute to the development of products and services.
2	Providing better services not only gives an enhanced competitive edge but also raises standards in the industry, which in turn will be reflected to customers as a determinant of greater expectations.
3	As a result, the customer's value chain would become an input of competitive advantage.
	Understanding what estisfies a great good and worth is the basic insuralization of a spin for switches at a constitution
4	Understanding what satisfies a customer's needs and wants is the basic ingredient of a recipe for arriving at successful marketing and improving competitive advantage.
5	Customers are an important source of identifying external ideas for many products and services; surveys enable them to reflect on their opinions about and experiences at the destination.
6	When tourists are satisfied with the destination, these satisfied customers are likely to come back or recommend the destination to others.
7	In contrast, when customers are dissatisfied, they will have the power to decide neither to come back nor to make favorable word-of-mouth recommendations.
8	As a consequence, customer-centered organizations or destinations are expected to have a greater opportunity to win over the competition.

leisure to be primarily rest from work.
2 Considering that the Romans were almost constantly involved in wars to dominate foreign	cultures, this viewpoint was necessary and allowed recuperation before the next war.
3 Play, then, served utilitarian rather than aesthetic or spiritual purposes.
4 As the Roman Empire grew and the increasing availability of slaves decreased the amount	of daily work people were required to do, leisure time increased and was increasingly used as a way to control the m	asses.

1	Inseparable from capitalism, leisure is structured by the economic system and the related markets it creates.
2	Commodified consumption is directly connected to the production process.
3	An analysis of the model airplane hobby industry illustrates how technical advancements transformed this fun activity.
4	The postwar introduction of plastics reorganized the traditional core of this hobby: the construction and flying of model airplanes.
5	For many years, enthusiasts focused on the flying aspects, and the model display was secondary.
6	Being able to construct and fly a model plane required extensive skills and aeronautic knowledge; thus, the market was small.
7	But the introduction of molding to modeling created a shift in focus.
